April 23rd, 2015

Dear Sir/Madam:

David was the UI designer for our product at Facebook under a contract for a full year. His main contribution was the visual design of a development tool we were building for Facebook with the intention to open source it as well as the design of user experience for some core features. As a result, the UI looked modern and sleek and received excellent feedback from our users. The UI fidelity was ready for open source. The product is an important tool that a significant portion of Facebook engineers use everyday.

To achieve this, David first conducted user research via surveys and interviews. Then he studied all major development tools and incorporated into his design. He re-themed the entire CSS, and changed the UI layout to be more discoverable and space-efficient. David also designed the UI and user experiences of a few core features. His deliverables included: wireframes, visual design compositions, and prototypes using HTML/CSS/SVG/JavaScript. His prototypes helped us play with the workflow and get a feel for the interactions before we implemented into production.

As David's manager, I was happy about his contribution to this project. He worked well with the team. He is a hard worker and always kept me updated through good communication. I highly recommend him for UI design and prototyping roles.

Best regards,

Leo Huang, Manager, Engineering lifeihuang@fb.com